"Got Culture?" by Craig Stanford

Please read "Got Culture." As you are reading, be aware of the fact that a culture may consist of a suite of traditions and it may be simple, symbolic or even arbitrary, as with language. After reading, please answer the following questions:

1. What were the cultural anthropologists' objections to the author's use of culture to describe chimpanzee behavior?

2. What is the difference between Gombe Chimps and Mahale chimps with regard to tool use and ant/termite eating?

3. What kinds of tools do the Tai chimps use and for what purpose? What kind of instruction is involved?

4. How does the author assess the three likeliest explanations for the differences among chimpanzee tool industries across Africa in light of the evidence?

5. How does the author describe tool-use among other big-brained animals? What are the possible explanations for why a big brain is not enough?
